Unemployment Insurance Benefits Eligibility Interview

DE 4365PFS/L (9-22) (INTERNET)

Anytown, California 99999

Employment Development Department
PO Box 1234
Anytown, CA 99999-9999

Employment Development Department
State of California

Unemployment Insurance Benefits Eligibility Interview

Who are you representing today?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?

You may represent another person to apply for UI benefits. You may represent a person in your own interest. You may represent a person if you are a legal representative of that person.

You also may represent another person if you are the following:

1. An individual who is receiving benefits in a different state
2. An individual who is a non-resident of California

Who represents you?